GAVIN MITCHELL

Gavin Mitchell's portfolio is always 'work in progress' whether creating art or observing (sketches).

Having graduated with a BA (Hons) Fine Art, Gavin Mitchell chose to take an extended sabbatical from sugar tints, soft grounds, solarisation and f-stops to concentrate on getting a proper job.

However a career in design and production, whilst allowing him, within reason to indulge in creative fantasies, never really fully satisfied his artistic appetite.

Gavin Mitchell returned to be a full-time artist, to use his talents as a photographer, print-maker and collagist in an attempt to create images that resonate and appeal.

"The human and material landscape is where I draw my inspiration. Captured through my lens or found through digging deep, the environment I live in and the world I travel through provides a limitless source of references that enthuse, intrigue and excite.

My own photography or 'found' material provide me with the origins from which my artwork is created. I am always striving to find ways of adding another visual 'layer' to the inherently two-dimensional nature of my source.

The eclectic nature of the editions of work featured on this website are a reflection of my restless 'digging', either visually or literally. Every corner you turn or old box you dig through can send you off on an entirely new adventure." – Gavin Mitchell
